National Intelligence Council

20 October 1982

Bill:

For tomorrow's Third World Seminar you might proceed as follows:

1. Say something about the importance of the less developed countries; e.g., they are important in human terms, of growing importance economically, and they are where most of the action is in the competition between the US and the USSR.

2. On the latter point you might use the latest version of the "Soviet Presence in the Third World" map and tables (which the participants will have in front of them) and comment on the trends shown there.

3. Make other points on Soviet-Third World Relations using the attached talking points (prepared by [redacted] who is drafting the USSR and the Third World Estimate).
